Civics Sleuths: Exploring Congressional Investigations

Join us for a workshop on the congressional power to investigate, an important element of our constitutional system of checks and balances. The Capitol Visitor Center's special exhibition, Congressional Investigations, examines Congressional probes into matters such as the attack on Pearl Harbor, McCarthyism, and Watergate. This workshop considers the civic process and public impact of Congress' investigatory powers.

This one-day workshop for teachers is presented by the Capitol Visitor Center Exhibits and Education Division.

Teachers will:

- Identify the steps in Congress' investigation process and consider techniques for teaching this process to students.
- Participate in a classroom discussion with primary sources and activities to take back to their classrooms.
- Explore the Congressional Investigations exhibition with Christine Blackerby, Exhibits Curator.
- Discuss historic investigations while touring the U.S. Capitol, including a special visit to a Senate Caucus Room.
- Receive a private tour of the Democracy Lab, a new hands-on learning gallery in the Capitol Visitor Center.
